Mr. Smith then made this statement;

"The members of the Mormen Church are among the freest, most independent people of all the Christian denominations.
They have freedom of speech, freedom of thought. They are not all united on

So long as one accepts God and his opinion is not in conflict with the accepted standards of the church. He who denies God, he who commits adultery, or steals, or lies, or bears false witness against his neighbor in any way, or goes contrary to the cardinal principles of our Christian religion, is compelled to withdraw, But one who is honest, virtuous, believes in God, and has a little faith in our religion, is nurtured, though he may not believe in the church in all that it teaches. In that book (Mr. Smith pointed to a Mormon volume) is a revelation on plural marriages. Not more than three or four per cent. of the entire membership of the church have entered that state. All the rest have abstained from plural marriages and many thousands have rejected the principle entirely."

Senator Dubois said: "I notice you say that many thousands rejected the doctrines of plural marriages, to you mean that they never practiced plural marriages, or that they declared against the principle of plural marriages and given the church in the revelation from Joseph Smith. Jr. To bring out the effect of refusing to subscribe to the teachings of the church, Mr. Hoar asked a number of questions, and Mr. Smith said:

"The principle of revelation is the fundamental principle of the church,"
"Have you ever received such a revelation direct from God?" asked Mr. Taylor.

"How has God shown you that?" asked Mr. Burrows.

"By inspiration." Mr. Smith described the accepted theory of the revelation of the principle of polygamy to Joseph Smith, Jr., saying that an angol in black had appeared unto him. He said rovelations had not come to him in that form, but that he had received direct revelations from God by inspiration.

At this point Mr. Bailey said he assumed that all of the testinony being brought out in regard to the religion of the Mormon church had some sound relation to the influence the church had in civil affairs, and that unless he was assured of that he should object.

Mr. Taylor answered that the prosecution would attempt to show that the church directed affairs of State and politics. No further objection was made.

At the afternoon session, Mr. Taylor asked in regard to the manifesto of Prosident Woodford Woodruff in 1800, commanding a suspension of the requirement that polygamy be practiced in the church, and also the prayer for amnosty in 1801. The questions were to assertain whether the members of the church considered these declarations affected the Being pressed for his personal belief, Mr. Smith said:

"I believe plural marriages to be right." Mr. Taylor then asked if it is true that the revelation declaring plural marriages remains in the books of authority as a part of the teachings of the church. Mr. Smith said that it was true. He also said that the subsequent manifests declaring the principle not in operation was fully understood.

Mr. Barrows directed a number of questions to Mr. Smith's answers relating to his belief in and acceptance of the divine revelations. He said:

"I understand you to say you believe in the revelation to Joseph Smith, Jr. in regard to polygamy, and still think it is right."

"I adhere to both in my bellef." said Mr. Emith. "I believe polygamy was right, or I should never have married more than one wife."
"As I understand it." Mr. Hoar interrupted, "the last revelation does not prohibit polygamy, but merely suspends the former principle commanding it. It may still be believed that the practice is innocent and proper, but as the divine command to continue it is stopped, the mombers of the church submit to the aivil law on the question of plural marriages."
